

Rattan cane + raffia leaves

Difficulty: Beginner 🍴🍴🍴🍴

Working time: 1 hour

Natural materials are currently indispensable in interiors! You can easily make these pretty decorative leaves from raffia and rattan cane yourself in the shape and size that suits you best. We explain step-by-step how to make these great eye-catchers in any vase.

This is how you design the leaves:

The decorative leaves can be produced in any size.

Take a strand of rattan cane and place it in lukewarm water for about 5 minutes. This will make it pliable. Then double the strand and hold the ends together. You now have a leaf shape. Take another piece for the centre of the leaf. Leave this strand longer so you can use it as a stem. Cut off the others with the scissors. Now tie all 3 strands together with raffia paper raffia. Leave it to dry. The rattan cane will then be stable again.

You can leave the leaves as they are or decorate them with more raffia. For example, you can design the leaf veins with raffia.

To do this, cut a piece of raffia about 2 metres long and knot it to the central piece of cane. Now start weaving: The raffia thread is tied alternately from one side to the other and under the rattan cane. To ensure that nothing slips, you can fix individual sections with handicraft glue.

At the end, tie the raffia around the three strands of cane several times so that they are no longer recognisable. Secure the end of the raffia with handicraft glue.

Place your decorative leaves in a container of your choice.
